Academic Support for FLEX STUDENTS

/ORIENTATION, TUTORING, ADVISEMENTS

New Student Orientation

Orientation provides new students with an introduction to the dean, faculty, and academic support resources available. Students are introduced to note taking, outlining, and exam writing skills critical to success in the classroom. Orientation is mandatory for all first year JD students.

Group Tutoring

Weekly group tutoring sessions are available for each subject of class. This provides students with an opportunity outside of the classroom to have their individual questions answered and to receive additional feedback, tips, and recommendations for improvements.

First Academic Advisement

Takes place after midterms. The primary objective of this meeting is to assess the student's performance after midterms and to provide a clear and specific plan to prepare for and succeed on final exams.

One-On-One Tutoring

As part of a student's First Academic Advisement meeting, students will receive a one-on-one private tutoring session after the student's first midterm. The tutor will review the student's graded midterms along with the professor's exam notes and provide in-depth feedback. Students will receive a clear and specific plan to aid them in preparation for their exams.

Post First Semester Advisement

The goal of this advisement is to help students assess how they can improve their performance. Students should be encouraged to address factors under their control rather than attributing poor results to external causes. The advisor will review the Self-Assessment and discuss perceived strengths and challenges to help the student focus on law school success. The advisor will also offer guidance regarding advancement into the Regular JD Program upon satisfying Flex Track requirements.

TIPS FOR SUCCESS

In order to maximize the opportunity for success, students should:

1. Complete all assigned reading and case briefing.
2. Attend all meetings, tutoring, and counseling sessions available.
3. Practice multiple choice and essay writing throughout the semester.
