

ON COURSE

FOR FLEX TRACK STUDENTS

| STUDENT ADVISEMENTS

New Student Orientation

Orientation provides new students with an introduction to the dean, faculty, and academic support resources available. Students are introduced to note taking, outlining, and exam writing skills critical to success in the classroom. Orientation is mandatory for all first year JD students.

First Academic Advisement

Weeks 8-10 of first semester

The primary objective of this meeting is to assess the student's performance after midterms and to provide a clear and specific plan to prepare for and succeed on final exams.

Post First Semester Advisement

Weeks 3-6 of second semester

The goal of this advisement is to help students assess how they can improve their performance. Students should be encouraged to address factors under their control rather than attributing poor results to external causes. The advisor will review the Self-Assessment and discuss perceived strengths and challenges to help the student focus on law school success. The advisor will also offer guidance regarding advancement into the Regular JD Program upon satisfying Flex Track requirements.
